Some Hope Held Beef Compromise Coming In Dispute On Controls

Big Packers Are Halting Slaughtering

OPS Chief Remains Firm In Demands

WASHINGTON, June 7 — The government and the meat industry squared off for a bitter battle over cattle controls today, but some observers saw a compromise ahead which would end the fight.

Curtailment of beef slaughtering by three of the nation's "big four" packers as a result of the price rollback failed to shake the Office of Price Stabilization from its position that controls will not be relaxed.

Armour, Swift, Cudahy and Wilson make up the "big four." Armour and Wilson announced yesterday that they have halted beef slaughtering in Chicago plants because they cannot buy cattle in compliance with price ceilings.

Swift and Co. announced it would stop beef slaughtering in Chicago after disposing of cattle purchased Monday and Tuesday.

Seven western cattle raisers, feeders and livestock commission merchants spent nearly two hours yesterday futilely trying to convince OPS that the highly-disputed rollback orders should be rescinded.

THE OPS POSITION has been announced firmly by Price Stabilizer Michael DiSalle who has said the orders will not be rescinded. He declared emphatically that price controls have been effective and denounced an "active and greedy minority" seeking to scuttle them.

DiSalle declared that this minority now wants to substitute different controls—higher taxes, credit restrictions, curbed feed-

'Dead Man's Crossing' Is Properly Named

An intersection on Route 56 about nine miles east of Circleville has appropriately come to be known as "Dead Man's Crossing" through the years.

It is the intersection of Routes 159 and 56 immediately west of Leisville, where 13-year-old Myrtle Congrove of Adelphi was injured fatally Tuesday.

A check of the records of accidents in Pickaway County since 1935 in the office of Sheriff Charles Radcliff shows a total of 45 mishaps have occurred at the crossing during the last 15 years.

That figure, three accidents a year, is not outstanding in itself, since it ranks the crossing far behind other intersections in the county where as many as five or six accidents are investigated yearly.

However, in the 45 accidents at "Dead Man's Crossing" there have been 31 persons injured and 10 deaths due to the crashes.

THIS MEANS THAT one person has died in every 4.5 accidents investigated at the crossing during the last 15 years, while a death or injury may be expected in virtually every accident there.

Mate's 'Lesson' Brings Death

NEW YORK, June 7 — Mrs. Helen McDermott, 49, told police that when her husband threatened to commit suicide, she decided to "teach him a lesson."

So when the husband, Peter, 46, went to bed, she turned on five gas jets of the kitchen range and went out to a bar for a drink. The husband died. She is accused of homicide.

SEVERAL VETOES EXPECTED

Governor Pouring Over 137 Legislative Bills

COLUMBUS, June 7—Governor Lausche today began the mammoth task of wading through a stack of 137 bills sent to his desk as the result of a single mass-production bill-signing session of the Ohio Legislature.

The governor has ten days—exclusive of Sundays—to make up his mind whether to approve or veto the measures or permit them to become law without his signature.

The flood of bills, enacted in the last hectic working days, topped by 18 the number sent to his desk in the entire preceding five months.

Lausche is expected to veto many of the enactments, including the bills to make the attorney general counsel of the turnpike commission, to permit city transit rate appeals to the Public Utilities Commission, and the "back door" judges' pay raise measure.

The 137 new measures — 87 senate measures and 50 originating in the house—were signed by the presiding officers of the two houses in another of those long-drawn-out sessions for which the 99th Ohio General Assembly has become famous.

IN ADDITION to the bills signed Wednesday, a total of 119 others have been sent to Lausche's desk. That means that only 256 bills cleared both chambers of the 1,038 introduced—a 247 batting average.

Of the 119 previous bills, the governor still has to act on 15. He has signed exactly 100, permitted two—the Mechem sales tax amendment and the sheriff removal bill—to become law without his signature, and has vetoed the other two.

Of the two vetoes, the lawmakers already have overridden his disapproval of the bill separating the church and state schools at Wilberforce.

The other, a measure permitting a fiduciary to gamble in the stock market with up to 35 percent of the assets of an estate, has not yet been acted upon.

The lawmakers, who finished their working sessions Sunday morning — still officially "Friday" on the legislative calendar — will come back for another session June 19, at which they may act on any further vetoes of the governor. They then will adjourn sine die—in other words, for keeps — unless called back into special session by the governor.

Yesterday's session, planned solely for the formality of signing the bills, was scheduled for three o'clock, but actually didn't get underway until two and a half hours later.

EVEN THEN THERE were but six representatives and two senators present of the 168 elected members.

Then, shortly after six o'clock, the house had to call another of those famous "five minute recesses" which lasted until ten p. m., when the last eight bills arrived from the printer. They included the $750 million general appropriations bill and the $43 million additions and betterments measure.

The senate, which has feuded with the house all five months of the working sessions, refused to go along with the "five-minute recess."

Instead, Sen. Ted Gray (R-Piqua) moved instead that the senate recess for "four minutes."

But it was still ten o'clock—in both houses—when the last eight bills arrived.

YALTA 'DEAL' DEBATED

Political Sniping Slows Questioning Of Acheson

WASHINGTON, June 7 — Secretary of State Acheson declared today there was no connection between the Communist conquest of China and concessions made to Russia by the late President Roosevelt at Yalta.

The secretary's statement came as administration Democrats opened a counterattack in the MacArthur dismissal inquiry against Republican charges that the Yalta "deal" to bring Russia into the Pacific war in 1945 was unnecessary.

Sen. McMahon, (D) Conn., read into the record a July, 1945, Senate speech by Sen. Wiley, (R) Wis., urging that the Soviets be brought into the Pacific conflict and declaring that "countless American lives are at stake in Russia's decision."

Acheson began his sixth round of testimony with his denial of U. S. "appeasement" on the Formosa issue under attack by Republicans and Southern Democrats.

Sen. George, (D) Ga., asserted:

"THE QUESTION of whether we will let Formosa fall into unfriendly hands is the whole basis of our Far East policy, and we are pretty shaky on it. We say we will not let it fall by force—but then we say that once there is a cease-fire in Korea, we will consider the Formosa question."

Sen. Knowland, (R) Calif., also criticized Acheson's defense of the administration's Formosa policy.

Chairman Russell, (D) Ga., of the Senate Armed Services-Foreign Relations Joint Investigating Committee, said it was "possible" that Acheson would complete his testimony tomorrow. If he does not, Russell said there will be a Saturday session.

Acheson testified that a cease fire at the 38th Parallel in Korea would be proper under United Nations policy because there is "no obligation to unify Korea by force."

Acheson also said that basic U. S. policy is to try to change Russia's attitude rather than try to expel her from the United Nations for working against its interests.

Acheson has told the investigators that:

1. Gen. MacArthur, Gen. Wedemeyer and Adm. Spruance in 1945 joined in a top-secret recommendation that the U. S. try to bring the Chinese Nationalists and Communists into a "unified, Democratic China." Administration critics have blamed this on Gen. Marshall and anti-Chiang Kai-shek forces in government.

2. The United States has no plan for a trusteeship for Formosa and in no event would try to force one on the Nationalist government if it objected because that would mean using armed force.

3. A U. S. Chamber of Commerce... a Chinese city appealed to the State Department in March, 1949, against further U. S. aid to the Chinese Nationalists because it was "inept, wasteful and corrupt." The local chamber charged that Chinese Reds then coming in were completely outfitted with U. S. arms and equipment obtained from Chiang's forces.

4. IT WOULD BE impossible to say now that "under no conditions" would Formosa be allowed to fall into unfriendly hands because unforeseen circumstances might arise. But Acheson emphatically stated that the U. S. will not let it fall by force to an enemy and will use every diplomatic means at its command to prevent the same.

5. Acheson participated in the June 25 recommendation sending the U. S. Seventh Fleet to guard Formosa. He said the announcement was withheld until the fleet was there, lest the news precipitate trouble.

6. MacArthur sent an intelligence report on March 10, 1950, (Continued on Page Two)

WASHINGTON, June 7 — The keystone of a new wage ceiling policy was in place today as a result of the Wage Stabilization Board approval of a four-cent hourly pay raise for 335,000 General Motors employees.

The board instructed its staff to clear the GM wage increase, which is based on greater output per worker through technological improvements and a promise that no price boosts for passenger cars will follow.

The 18-man panel adopted a resolution which will allow the same wage increase for the remainder of one million CIO United Auto Workers if the manufacturing concerns will make clear that the raise will not be used as an argument for higher price ceilings.

This action was taken at the close of an all-day session, most of which was devoted to a futile attempt to agree with Economic Stabilizer Johnston on a new wage ceiling to replace the existing formula.

FOE MASSES ARTILLERY

UN Punching Out Gains Toward Red Supply Dump

TOKYO, June 8—(Friday)—United Nations troops punched out two-mile gains Thursday toward the vital Communist supply center of Chorwon, but violent resistance stalled the Allied drive on another corner of Korea's "iron triangle."

Front dispatches said heavy Red counterattacks brought the drive on pivotal Kumhwa to a virtual halt. A field dispatch more than half of which was deleted by censors, reported gains of two miles toward Chorwon against "light opposition."

The enemy was massing one of the heaviest concentrations of artillery ever used by the Communists in the Korean war in a desperate effort to protect their great Central Korean supply triangle. A field dispatch quoted one Allied officer as saying:

"We've received more artillery in the last 24 hours than we have ever seen before."

CHINESE FORCES, supported by intensified artillery and mortar barrages, struck back savagely after tank-led United Nations columns slugged their way into the inner defenses below both Kumhwa and Chorwon.

Grim battles raged Thursday as the UN troops smashed up to the southern threshold of the enemy's strategic Kumhwa-Chorwon-Pyongyang "iron triangle," surmounting the last mountain barriers in their path.

Similar severe fighting raged along the front's eastern section where strong North Korean forces hurled themselves against Allies units.

In ridge-creased mid-Korea, "heavy" opposition from Chinese troops was encountered Thursday above Hwachon on the road leading northwest to Kumhwa, 18 miles above Parallel 38, the Eighth Army said. Its Thursday night communiqué.

There, the bulletin related, an enemy battalion "clung stubbornly to defensive positions and launched platoon and company sized counterattacks."

Another Chinese battalion made an aggressive stand northeast of Yonggong on a high-way running into Kumhwa from the southwest. The Eighth Army communiqué said 115 Reds were killed, 20 prisoners taken and "considerable enemy equipment" captured in this battle Thursday morning.

ON THE PENINSULA'S opposite side, heavy Red opposition was met north of the east-central hub of Inje, limiting the day's Allied advance in that area.

Farther east, a 600-man North Korean group put up heavy resistance north-northwest of Hangeyo to Allied troops attempting to secure high ground.

No claims of further advances in these eastern areas were contained in the official announcement.

More A-Tests Being Planned

NEW YORK, June 7—Chairman Gordon Dean disclosed today that the Atomic Energy Commission is planning to stage weapons tests "at more frequent intervals" in a stepped-up program to emphasize defense aspects of atomic energy.

The only tests known to be scheduled are to be held in the Aleutian Islands and will determine the effect of atomic explosions when they are set off underground, but Dean's remarks indicated that new types of bombs and other weapons are also being scheduled for tests.

AT THE SAME TIME $1,712.31 was distributed in inheritance tax money. Of this $4,580.16 went to the state, $1,275.99 to the county in fees; $4,105.38 to corporations and $1,750.78 to the townships.

The distribution to the subdivisions of the county was as follows: Townships: Circleville $1,315.63; Darby $1,758.55; Deercreek $1,690.34; Harrison $6,094.65; Jackson $2,976.70; Madison $1,242.93; Monroe $4,007.92; Muhlenberg $1,321.57; Perry $2,521.38; Pickaway $5,743.41; Salt-creek $2,187.22; Scioto $1,955.64; (Continued on Page Two)

'Idealistic Mission' Is Claimed Goal

LONDON, June 7—Two top British diplomats—one the chief of the American department at the Foreign Office—were reported to have fled for Soviet Russia today and an intensive manhunt was launched on both sides of the English Channel.

London newspapers quoted a friend of the two men as saying they had gone to Paris to work their way behind the Iron Curtain on what they termed an "idealistic mission."

Commander Leonard Burt, chief of the special branch of Scotland Yard who investigated the case of convicted atomic spy Dr. Klaus Fuchs, was assigned to handle the mysterious disappearances.

The men are Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean. The latter, married to an American woman identified as Melinda Marling, was named head of the U. S. department of the British Foreign Office last November.

Burgess had been connected with the Far Eastern "epartment" and assigned to study of Chinese affairs.

BOTH MEN WERE suspended from duty as of June 1.

The Foreign Office announcement was the first word of what may develop into a British Alger Hiss case. Hiss, trusted U. S. State Department official, recently went to prison for lying about his part in a Soviet spy ring.

French police and secret agents were alerted and are carrying out a thorough check of all ports of entry and exits. The diplomats left their homes on May 25 ostensibly for a vacation in Paris. But the friend was quoted as saying that they intended to work their way into Soviet territory "to serve idealistic purposes."

Scotland Yard is understood to have asked the FBI to check the American connections of both men, who had been attached during their diplomatic careers to the British embassy in Washington.

7 Nazi War Criminals Die On Gallows

LANDSBERG, Germany, June 7—Seven notorious Nazi war criminals responsible for the deaths of two million concentration camp inmates were executed today by a U. S. Army hangman.

The grisly careers of the seven dealers of death were ended in a specially built execution hut in the backyard of the Landsberg prison. The "death hut" was only a few yards from the prison wing where their leader, Adolf Hitler, plotted his scheme of conquest which brought about World War II.

Oswald Pohl, former chief administrator of Nazi concentration camps, was the most prominent of the seven who died on the specially constructed gallows.

The executions were carried out after months of delay caused by a series of appeals which were taken as high as the U. S. Supreme Court. One report of a last-minute appeal was circulated in Washington yesterday.

The unidentified Army hangman was brought to Landsberg from his regular post to perform the grim execution task. The Army announced after the task was completed that the hangings "mark the last executions at Landsberg."

Gaspie Bomb Blast Probed

COLUMBUS, June 7 — Columbus police are investigating another gaspipe bomb which exploded, but caused no damage.

The blast cut loose in the Beechwood neighborhood about two houses away from the home of Police Sgt. Howard T. Newman. It was the second of its kind within a week.

eral spending—even though they are "vexatious."

He said price control opponents are willing "to exchange these relatively minor disturbances for the unbridled license, gross profiteering and scare buying that were leading us to disaster in late 1950 and early 1951."

Despite adamant stands on both sides, possibility of a compromise was not discounted.

Speculation centered on (1) Tuesday's 90-minute conference between President Truman, his mobilization chiefs and the seven cabinetmen; (2) the fact that the latter refused steadfastly to tell reporters their views on the rollback regulations or what their figures indicated; (3) the fact that the western grower came to Washington at the President's invitation and (4) a compromise offered by Oklahoma Gov. Roy J. Turner and M. J. Flynn of Kansas City.

OBSERVERS ALSO recalled that Economic Stabilizer Johnston told the House Agriculture Committee that the orders would be reconsidered if the cattle industry could prove permanent hardship.

Fuel was added to the rumors when a representative of southwestern cattle raisers reported the Turner delegation offered a compromise solution to the President. Turner and Flynn denied that, saying they offered nothing and received no offers from the government.

A survey made by OPS showed that shortages developed in Midwest, Southern and New England areas after controls went into effect last month.

An OPS investigating crew reported, however, that Eastern packers and smaller Chicago packing houses, who are covered by the same regulations as the large firms, are buying cattle.

Boston dealers report a plentiful supply of beef, but Washington wholesalers say there is a severe shortage of beef, and of lamb, too. They predict the situation will become worse next week.

The Boston dealers in the midst of current plenty also look at next week with gloom. It may be a famine, they say, after the feast because they are dubious about replenishing their supplies.

Generally in cities where beef is presently in adequate supply dealers were pessimistic about the immediate future, noting a thinning of the flow from the packing centers.

Rumors were widespread that large quantities of beef were being shunted to the black market because of the OPS ceilings, but in only three cities could these definitely be pinned down in fact—New York, Kansas City and New Orleans.

The Foreign Office issued a statement confirming the disappearance after two London newspapers reported that a widespread search was underway.

The two diplomats came from highly respected families and both have British university backgrounds. Government sources said they were "strategically placed and in a position to know everything."

But there was no definite indication that they had taken any papers with them on their departure.

Vet Of Korean War Addresses Ashville Group

Ashville American Legion members heard an address by a Marine Corps veteran of action in the Korean conflict Wednesday night.

Speaker was Lt. Lee Nicholson of Ashville, who had been through all of the U.S. Marine action in Korea until May 15.

The Ashville Marine was out of actual combat for a month during the period, recovering after having been wounded three times in action.

Nicholson told the Ashville Legion members of the activities of his organization in the Korean war.

The Ashville post later received its permanent charter. About 50 members are now on the rolls of the new post, which was formed last year.

McDowell Gets New Contract

George D. McDowell of Ashville has been awarded renewal of a two-year contract as superintendent of Pickaway County schools.

Pickaway County board of education Wednesday rehired McDowell as superintendent of the county system for another two years. McDowell has held the post since 1934.

The county board also rehired James Pierce of Washington Township as attendance officer for the county system for another year. Pierce has been attendance officer for the last three years.

Runaway Boys Are Halted Here

Two Columbus youngsters who ran away from home were turned over to Franklin County authorities here Thursday by the sheriff's office.

Deputy Jim Diltz said he took the two boys, ages 10 and 11, into custody Wednesday on Route 23 at Clay's restaurant.

The deputy said the youngsters were caught as they attempted to exchange one of the bicycles they were riding for another bike. The bicycles on which they ran away from home also were stolen, he added.

Batavia was accused of failing to yield the right of way in a two-car crash at Routes 56 and 159 in which the Congrove lass was fatally injured.

The Adelphi girl died at 4:55 p. m. Tuesday in Children's hospital, Columbus. She suffered a fractured skull, fractured nose and lacerations of the face and neck. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Friday in Adelphi Methodist church.

The Toledo man entered a plea of innocence to the accusation which was filed by Deputy Sheriff Jim Diltz.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Rosetta Congrove, 34, mother of the girl who died and driver of the other auto, remained in critical condition Thursday in Berger hospital.

Hospital attaches reported Thursday that the Adelphi woman has not regained consciousness. She suffered a brain concussion, possible fractured skull, fractured left arm and head lacerations in the crash.

Drunken Driver Loses License

James Binion, 63, of Logan Route 1 Wednesday was deprived of his driving rights for one year by Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court.

The Logan man's driving license was suspended after he pleaded guilty to an accusation of drunken driving on Route 22 on June 2. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff James Diltz.

In addition to the license suspension, Judge Radcliff fined Binion $25 and costs and sentenced him to 30 days in Pickaway jail. The jail sentence was suspended.

Materials For 4 Houses Cost $1

ARCHBOLD, June 7—Jesse Storrer believes he has purchased enough material for one dollar to build four houses.

Storrer was the only bidder on the 60-year-old Archbold school, which originally cost $30,000 to build, but which has been condemned and ordered razed. Storrer, who has until September to salvage the materials, said he plans to build four houses with the brick and timber.

Man Is Hurt As He Speeds To Side Of Son

A Kingston Route 1 man was injured seriously Wednesday afternoon in a traffic accident as he was rushing home to care for his four-year-old child.

He is Franklin Smith, 38, who was answering an emergency request from his wife, when his auto skidded out of control and plunged into a farm field.

Deputy Jim Diltz said the mishap occurred at about 2:45 p. m. Wednesday on the Meade-Hayesville road at Ruggles' Woods in Pickaway Township.

The deputy said Smith's wife had called her husband Wednesday afternoon when their four-year-old child lost consciousness after inhaling gasoline fumes from a garden tractor. He was on his way home when the crash occurred.

Diltz said Smith was driving south on the Meade-Hayesville road, apparently at a high rate of speed.

THE DEPUTY SAID the Smith car went out of control on a curve, swerving to the right side of the road and then skidding to the left, into a ditch and through a fence into the Otis Leist farm field.

"Smith's car rolled over at least four times," the deputy said. The demolished vehicle came to a halt about 70 feet in the field from the highway.

Smith was rushed into Berger hospital, where he was given emergency treatment for possible concussion and lacerations of the face and head. His condition was reported fair Thursday.

Diltz added that the Smith youngster later recovered from the effects of the gasoline fumes.

in the Summer of 1950 "did not appear imminent." The cabinet member quoted this passage from the estimate passed along by MacArthur:

"Seems likely that Communist overt military measures in Korea will be held in abeyance, at least until further observations are made by Soviets of results of their program in such places as Indo-China, Burma and Thailand."

"If the Soviets are satisfied they are winning the struggle for these places, they probably will be content a while longer and let South Korea ripen for future harvest."

The Communist invasion of South Korea came June 25, 1950.

Acheson said MacArthur's headquarters agreed that the Reds would be "prepared" to invade South Korea by Autumn, 1950, or "possibly by the next Spring."

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Director

The almost insuperable difficulties that lie in the way of liquidating a world war were emphasized anew by the negotiations being carried out in London by John Foster Dulles for Anglo-American agreement on a peace treaty for Japan.

Dulles, Far Eastern adviser to the State Department and President Truman's ambassador - at - large, apparently is finding the British more cooperative than in the past on this vital matter.

But his conversations with British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison, Minister of State Kenneth Younger and others, make plain that a whole host of obstacles remain to be cleared.

Britain is reported to have suggested a formula for Chinese participation in treaty negotiations on the basis of what is termed an "accession clause."

This is diplomatic language with a vengeance. It means, in effect, that the Allied powers would work out a treaty which eventually would be signed by whatever government happens to be in power in China.

COMPLICATING THIS vague formula is the attitude of Soviet Russia.

Dulles told newsmen in the British capital that the Soviets want, or wanted, a peace treaty for Japan to be drafted by the Council of Foreign Ministers.

But the deputies of this council have been meeting in Paris since March 5, attempting to draft an agenda for a Big Four meeting.

And while Russia ostensibly has accepted a United States bid to attend such a conference in Washington on July 23, Moscow stands by its insistence that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and existence of American bases in Europe be included on an agenda.

This is unacceptable to the Western Powers. The Big Four conference would be designed to explore the causes of existing tension in Europe.

But the Western nations take the view that the NATO and American bases do not fit into this category on the grounds that they are the result, rather than the cause, of tension.

Dulles has made it clear that from the American viewpoint the old concept of formal peace conferences punctuated by brilliant banquets and dances has gone more or less into the discard. This is true also of ultimatums and declarations of war which characterized unhappy relationships between nations in the past.

The Communist invasion of South Korea proved—if proof were needed — that a friendly and prosperous Japan is essential to the preservation of Democracy. The grim realities of the present and the dangers that lie in the future are playing a massive role in the conversations and negotiations now underway.

Socialite Seeks Plumbers Permit

BOSTON, June 7—A 47-year-old West Hanover socialite yesterday took an examination which would make her the only licensed woman plumber in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Grace F. Norwood, a member of the Hanover Hunt and Riding Club, took the plumber's examination with 261 men. If she passes the written examination she will have to take the oral and practical tests.

Teen-Agers Held For Burglaries

COLUMBUS, June 7 — Three youths, one of them living "off the fat of the land," face charges today for a series of burglaries and robberies in Columbus.

COUNTRY SURE TO GROW

U.S. Industrialists Eye Potentialities In Ireland

NEW YORK, June 7—The potentialities of Ireland or Eire, as its residents prefer to have their country known, are being viewed with growing interest today by many leading American business firms.

Although Ireland is principally agricultural, the belief is held by observers on both sides of the Atlantic that the country's economy can readily support an industrial setup which will more evenly balance its economic structure.

In one respect, of course, Ireland can be regarded as providing a safer haven than many other nations actively receiving United States economic aid. That is in the complete non-existence of the Communist problem.

As regards Marshall Plan aid, the most recent figures show that the Economic Cooperation Administration has given approximately $144 million in financial grants to Ireland. The two principal classifications of this aid were $92 million for food and agricultural commodities, and $35 million for raw materials and industrial commodities.

INCIDENTALLY, Ireland stands eleventh on the list of the 16 European countries which are being given Marshall Plan help. Meantime, the government of Ireland, in cooperation with ECA, is conducting an industrial survey aimed at developing further manufacturing processes within that country.

One of America's top industrial firms is already solidly established in Ireland. That is the Ford Motor Company which decided to set up manufacturing plants on the premise that transport charges could be avoided, if instead of shipping finished products which would take up a great deal of space in ships, the component parts could be shipped and assembled in Ireland.

One offshoot of the currency problem that is being closely studied by American business firms which already have outlets in other European countries is that it will be possible for these companies to set up branches in Ireland by using blocked foreign credits.

It was pointed out that European currencies are more or less freely transferable. Thus American firms which already have blocked credits on the continent can convert these funds into Irish pounds for the purpose of financing new facilities inside Ireland.

The gradual swing toward a wartime economy in the U.S., with its diversion of vital raw materials to defense production, has caused American financial experts to study another phase of the foreign trade problem.

THE THOUGHT is being pressed that U.S. firms might be interested in coming to Ireland if they could obtain raw materials, either in Ireland, or from nearby countries, to continue their present manufactured products. This would permit the continuance of trade with European customers which otherwise, would be cut off by the shortages of supplies in the U.S.

In the present state of world unrest, it may be difficult to sell many American business firms on the profit potentialities of any country outside the U.S.

There appears to be general agreement on both sides of the Atlantic, however, that Ireland will be the scene of an important industrial expansion when some semblance of world normalcy is restored.

TV-Radio Programs

Programs listed in the following television log contain errors daily, the fault resting entirely with broadcasters and not with The Herald. Intent of this newspaper is to provide accurate information for subscribers, but finds this impossible so far as the three Columbus television stations are concerned. The programs printed are assembled from information sent out by the Columbus stations and are not to be regarded seriously. Complaints about inaccuracies in program listings should be made to the broadcasting stations and not to The Herald. Because of continuing inaccuracies, The Herald has been forced to delete all TV programs prior to 6 p. m. Radio programs are evening network listings.

Age-Old Pomp To Highlight Cardinal's Rites

PHILADELPHIA, June 7—Final rites for the late Dennis Cardinal Dougherty will be held today in the vast cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul in Philadelphia with all the age-old pomp of the Roman Catholic church.

A great assembly of the church's hierarchy in the United States gathered for the ceremonies beginning with a solemn pontifical mass of requiem sung by Auxiliary Bishop J. Carroll McCormick of Philadelphia.

The cardinal's body will be buried in the crypt beneath the high altar of the cathedral, traditional last resting place of the archbishops of Philadelphia.

Leading the clerical mourners were the three remaining U. S. cardinals — Edward Cardinal Mooney of Detroit, now the senior American prelate; Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York and Samuel Cardinal Stritch of Chicago.

A fourth prince of the church, Thomas Tien of Peking, who is visiting this country, also was assigned one of the four main thrones at the mass.

County Farmers Told That Swine Enteritis Can Cause Big Losses

Swine enteritis is frequently the guilty party in the "breaks" that follow cholera immunization.

Pickaway County Agent Larry Best said Thursday that "enteritis is not a single disease. The name covers several different infections and disorders."

"Causes and symptoms vary so much that a veterinary diagnosis, herd survey, and study of feeding and management practices may be necessary to find the cause of an outbreak."

Enteric diseases may cause heavy mortality, but the greatest economic loss from these troubles lies with the many more weakened, poor-doing pigs that live and eat feed without gaining as they should, Best warned.

HE SAID THAT the American Foundation for Animal Health endorses these seven suggestions to curb enteritis losses:

1. Isolate newly purchased hogs from the home herd for at least three weeks, until they are known to be free from enteric conditions.
2. Control internal and external parasites which weaken the animal's resistance.
3. Keep swine away from old hog lots, contaminated pastures, stagnant pools, and other sources of infection.

4. Keep feeding and watering equipment clean.

5. Check rations carefully, especially for possible deficiency of B-complex vitamins. Prevent over-eating of rich concentrates.

6. Ear mark sows and their litters to identify and weed out sow "carriers."

7. Watch for scouring, loss of weight, and failure to gain well on good rations. At the first sign of trouble, get a diagnosis, and remove the sick animals from the apparently healthy ones.

Newer discoveries in the use of anti-biotics indicate that the hog man may have a new medicine to use on hogs infected with some forms of enteritis.

"These are not shotgun cures, so follow the veterinarian's advice," Best urged. He added: "Remember that today's prices of hogs and hog feeds point out the truth of the old proverb about the ounce of prevention."

Airforce Prefers Different Color

DAYTON, June 7—The Airforce has announced in Dayton the ordering of $5.6 million worth

Methodists Rap Military Men As State Aides

LAKEVILLE, June 7—The Ohio annual conference of the Methodist church believes the U. S. State Department should not fill its key positions with military officers.

The conference, meeting in Lakeside, approved a committee report yesterday by its world peace committee which stated:

"The church reaffirms the historic American insistence that the military shall be subject to civilian control. Contemporary controversies in which personal elements have been injected should never blind us to the historic premise of the American way of life."

The report stated that the "Department of State is our department of peace."

"It is a mistake to fill key positions in this department with military officers who by training and experience are inclined to think in terms of war rather than peace."

"If the trend continues there is danger that a military oligarchy will supplant our American Democracy," the report stated.

The conference also backed the United Nations and lauded the "efforts to limit the present war to Korea."

Money Matters Are Dictated In Divorce Actions

Vista B. Redman, defendant in a divorce suit filed by Robert N. Redman, has been ordered by Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court to pay her legal expenses out of a $400 fund owned jointly by herself and the plaintiff.

Balance of the fund is to be used for living expenses for herself and three children during pendency of the suit. In addition the wife is to collect $55 a month rent from jointly owned property and apply it to living expenses.

Motion for temporary alimony, child support and legal expenses was filed by the wife.

Also in common pleas court Robert B. Linton has been ordered to pay $10 a week temporary support to Irene Linton, plaintiff in a divorce suit against him.

In addition the husband has been ordered to pay a total of $56 a month on bills, to pay all utility bills and to supply $100 for the plaintiff's legal expenses.

Ag Station Open House Due Friday

Beef Demonstration To Top Program

WOOSTER, June 7—Most favorable ration for beef cattle in the feed lot and the effect of the age of castration on cattle will be two highlights of the first Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station open house.

Director L. L. Rummell said emphasis of the event, scheduled for 10 a. m. Friday, will be on beef cattle. The feeding project is to determine protein supplement to use with poor quality hay.

Soybean oil meal is the basic source of protein in the test. Corn silage and molasses are being fed in varying amounts.

In the castration project, two lots of steers were castrated at different times. One lot was castrated May 11; the other, October 31. Using a check lot of bulls, scientists want to learn how time of castration affects rate of gain, feed needed for 100 pounds of gain, dressing percentage and carcass quality.

Visitors at open house also will see wheat variety and legume tests. They will see the pasture farm with rotation pastures and pasture mixtures for dairy cattle.

THE SHEEP FARM will exhibit feeding and breeding tests designed to determine breeding lines, feeder lambs and rations best suited to Ohio farms.

Poultry work with built-up litter and ladino clover range for laying hens will be discussed. Various rations, such as all-plant protein diets, also will attract interest.

Small fruit plantings, including strawberry breeding and weed control work and raspberry and blue berry breeding plots, will be open to visitors.

Visitors will tour Secrest Arboretum, with 660 varieties of trees, as well as the rest of the station. They will hear discussion of woods management and preservation work.

Forestry plantings include a Taxus Yew collection of 90 some varieties, one of the most complete collections in the country.

Dates for other field days at the Station are: Poultry Day, Thursday, June 28; Open House, featuring sheep, Friday, July 20; Dairy Day, Friday, Aug. 10; Orchard Day, Thursday, Aug. 16; Swine Day, Tuesday, Sept. 11; and Open House, featuring corn and soybeans, Friday, Sept. 21.

Drop In Cost Of Relief Here Is Reported

A drop in the cost of relief to Pickaway counties during May was reported Thursday by Pauline Roese, county relief director.

Miss Roese said the May relief total was $3,360.06, a drop of $921.40 from the $4,281.46 spent in April and a decrease of $4,303.88 from the $7,663.94 reported for May, 1950.

Miss Roese gave the breakdown of the relief cost as follows, with May figures listed first, followed by April:

Administration, $361.88 and $409.50; county relief, $2,998.18 and $3,871.96; city relief, $1,101.20 and $1,839.88; care, $118.20 both months; hospital, $1,194.92 and $1,533.68; medical, $476.50 and $620; rent, $200 and $195; clothing, $12.65 and $96.11; fuel, $23.46 and $40.72; food, $903.65 and $1,172.05; work, $71.80 and $96.20.

THE CASE LOAD for May was 64, compared with 88 for the month before and 195 for May, 1950, the relief director said.

She said relief was extended to 26 families comprising 118 persons in May, while the month before 37 families comprising 213 persons were given aid.

Relief was given to 21 single persons last month, compared with 26 in April. Work relief in both April and May was extended to one single person and one family of five persons.

Medical and hospital care was given to 15 persons in May, while the month before 23 persons benefited.

Miss Roese said that 24 relief cases were closed last month, mostly due to increased job opportunities. She added that 21 cases were opened, these resulting from illness, disability and desertion.

concert by Adelphi Community Band, followed by invocation by the Rev. Arnold Ettenhofer of the Stoutsville EUB church charge.

Speaker for the program will be Rev. Mr. Harris of Lancaster Boys' Industrial School. The service is open to the public.

Best Gives Tips To Win Battle Against Plant Bugs And Chiggers

June insect pests can be controlled if the proper material is used to combat them.

"Vegetable gardens, field crops and livestock may all suffer from one or more insect pests unless man keeps one jump ahead of the bugs," Pickaway County Agent Larry Best said Thursday.

Best said that T. H. Parks, extension entomologist for Ohio State university, "has the following suggestions to make bugs mighty uncomfortable."

Adult Spittlebugs, Leafhoppers and Plant Bugs: Treat legume seed crops with 1½ pounds of technical DDT per acre about 20 days after the first crop is removed and before bloom appears. Do not pasture or feed DDT treated feed to dairy cows. Furnish 2 colonies of bees per acre if seed is the goal.

CORN BORERS WILL start hatching about the middle of June. Use of DDT on early market sweet corn does pay. Spraying of canning corn and seed corn may pay if borer infestation is heavy. From 25 to 50 egg masses per 100 plants can mean heavy infestation. Spraying for corn borer control in field corn is not recommended unless there are one or more egg masses on every plant and last year's corn had a borer population of five or more borers per stalk. Pickaway County did not have this heavy an infestation last year.

Garden Pests: Striped cucumber beetles will arrive early in June. Use Rotenone. Mexican bean beetles will be here by mid-June; use Rotenone.

Aphids are appearing now on flowers and flowering shrubs. They may appear on tomatoes and late peas, use nicotine sulfate. If aphids appear on commercial pants of peas or tomatoes, use Tepp or parathion. DDT is the remedy to use on flea beetles, potato beetles, leaf hoppers and corn borers.

Grain Weevils: Clean empty bins and spray with DDT solution. If weevils are found in grain in bins, fumigate with carbon bisulfide; (be careful, it is inflammable).

FLY SPRAYS: IF DDT has been successful for you in the past, use it; use care not to contaminate feed and milk. Methoxychlor is satisfactory, can be used on dairy cattle; not as long-lasting as DDT. Lindane is excellent, short duration, expensive. Pyrethrin can be used on cattle just before milking, does not last for more than two days.

No fly control program will be too successful without good sanitation accompanying it. Manure should be removed at least weekly.

Chiggers — 'stirring aren't they? One pint of Chlordane or Toxaphene concentrate or four ounces of Lindane in five gallons of water will spray 7,000 square feet of lawn area and will last for about six weeks.

Experiments show that the chimpanzee is the most intelligent animal, aside from man.

"Some day I'm going to own a Roadmaster"

ONE thing that interests us mightily is the fact that so many people are stepping up, when they buy automobiles.

We've been looking at surveys, and it seems that just about everyone wants a better car than the one he's now driving.

So we know how you feel, and we'd like to help you make your dreams come true.

We'd like you to discover how fine a fine car can be.

We'd like you to stretch out in the room of a ROADMASTER—feel the luxury of its double-depth cushions—stroke the fine texture of its fabrics.

We'd like you to know the proud levelness of its coil-spring cushioned ride—as well as its gentle obedience to your hand on the wheel.

We'd like to show you the many extras this custom-built Buick provides—at no extra charge when we come to make out a bill of sale.

But above all, we'd like you to experience two thrills found exclusively in ROADMASTERS.

One is the smooth might of its Fireball Engine. The other is the supreme simplicity of Dynaflo Drive, which is, incidentally, one of the many features included in the price.

We try to hold down our enthusiasm in talking about this masterful beauty.

We might claim—you'll find more room—more comfort—more luxury—a smoother ride—more conveniences—more thrill in a ROADMASTER than in any other car in the fine-car field.

But why spoil the thrill of discovery? Come find out for yourself how completely a 1951 ROADMASTER fulfills the dreams of the car you hope sometime to own.

And let us whisper something to you: The cost of making this step to ROADMASTER ownership is less than most people believe.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice.

A DREAM COME TRUE

NO FORMAL ceremony marked the 40th anniversary of the dedication of the massive central building of the New York Public Library, the white marble structure at Fifth Avenue and 42nd Street, which houses one of the three largest collections of books in the United States, the others being the Library of Congress and that of Harvard University.

In those 40 years the book collection has grown from 373,000 to 3,500,000 volumes, the maximum ever contemplated for the 90 miles of book shelves.

What has taken place in these four decades is the consummation of the dream of farsighted men and women, who realized the great worth of such an institution, made possible by a consolidation of the Astor Library, the Lenox Library and the Samuel J. Tilden Trust.

The central library reference department is, and always has been, privately maintained, and has an average of 1,250,000 visitors a year. It provides a reading room almost 100 yards long and 77 feet wide.

The circulation department of the library with its 65 branches is maintained by the City of New York. For home use in 1949 it distributed more than 9,000,000 volumes.

Cultural value of the New York Public Library through the years to casual readers, to students and to earnest researchers who have traveled hundreds of miles to avail themselves of literary treasures elsewhere inaccessible is beyond computation.

FEWER AUTO DEATHS

Another facet of the Summer now getting underway in which it may differ from previous years is that auto deaths may decline. To the amazement of all safety officials, the May 30 holiday was accompanied by a diminution of highway slaughter which upset all calculations. If the warm months ahead indeed register a decline in deaths on the highway, it will be a welcome development.

No national problem has been attacked more vigorously and with more disheartening results than that of automobile accidents. Perhaps safety campaigns are at long last paying off. Perhaps motorists have finally been impressed by the fact that the life they endanger when they drive recklessly may be their own.

Head of a western university says humanity never progresses unless dissatisfied. Apparently we are getting ready to go places.

Businessmen are breaking down in middle age because of competition, warns a Cincinnati doctor. And no trade-in value on a new model.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Someday, perhaps 10 or 20 years from now, the American people may discover from the record how we have become involved in this costly, damaging and dangerous Korean war. From the testimony of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, it is clear that we were not prepared for the enterprise and that we had appraised it incorrectly. This is the gist of General Vandenberg's testimony.

Senator Karl E. Mundt, in a scholarly study of the Korean war, makes the point: "In times past, some American presidents have involved the fighting forces of this country in minor skirmishing abroad or in short lived small deal wars by executive action. Up to now, however, these have always been justified as a military venture ordered by the President in defense of either the lives or property of America or in fulfillment of treaty obligations which had been entered into by this country through constitutional processes. It appears that neither of these justifications is applicable to the war in Korea in which we were involved by the action of President Truman last June."

What then was the issue there? In the Iranian situation (1946), the very existence of the United Nations was involved, for if Soviet Russia could, through local instigation, destroy a member state, how could the United Nations survive? Soviet Russia retreated from supporting the Azerbaijani revolution.

In the matter of the Israel-Arab war (1947-49), the United Nations intervened to establish a truce and eventually a peace. This added to the stature of the United Nations and set a precedent, similar to the solution of the Indonesian civil war (1945-1949).

On the other hand, the United Nations permitted the conquest of the whole of China by Soviet Russia through the Chinese Communist Party without intervention or protest. In fact, members of the United Nations, such as Great Britain, hurried to recognize the conquerors while the defeated party remained a member of the United Nations by treaty. The United Nations prestige suffered a marked decline as a result of its handling of the China situation.

In the struggle between India and Pakistan over Kashmir, the United Nations has displayed a weakness which exhibits its incapacity to handle political situations objectively. Simply stated, the United Nations has thus far failed to solve the Kashmir problem.

The Korean situation originated in the confusions at the Yalta conference. As neutrality in the Pacific war was Russia's blackmail weapon, Stalin did not lightly abandon it. Thus was developed the concept of the 38th Parallel in Korea and the Russian possession of the warm water ports and the railroads of Manchuria. This betrayal of China and secret revocation of the Cairo agreement (1943) laid the basis for our troubles in Korea.

But why did not the United Nations attempt to handle Korea as it did Iran, Indonesia and Israel? The answer is that the United Nations fears Soviet Russia now. It appears from the testimony before the Russell committee that the United States also fears Soviet Russia now. In a word, the position of Russia in international relations has grown to be so strong that the United Nations has ceased to be capable of applying the provisions of its charter and has thrown the burden upon the United States.

A Strange Form of Baldness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ONE of the strangest forms of baldness is known as alopecia areata, in which the hair suddenly begins to fall out in coin-sized patches without any apparent cause. This condition seems to occur as often in women as in men, though the location of the bald patches differs in the two sexes. In boys and men these bald patches occur mostly on the back of the head, while the reverse is true with women and girls.

The cause of this disorder is not known, though many physicians believe that it is due to a virus. In any event, experience teaches that the baldness usually appears following some mental shock or acute anxiety. Infections of the scalp are thought to play only a minor role, if any, in bringing it about and, while about 20 per cent of the cases show a family history of the disease, there is little evidence that it results from an inherited tendency.

White Patches

About five per cent of the people afflicted with this type of baldness also show white patches on the skin due to the destruction of its pigment and, in many patients, there are changes in the nails.

Most people with this disorder recover but in some—and it is difficult to predict which they will be—it persists until there is a generalized falling of the hair with complete loss of the eyebrows and whitening or loss of the lashes. When this occurs rapidly, the chance for recovery is very slight. This condition is known as alopecia totalis. However, when the loss of body hair accompanies this disease, it is known as alopecia universalis, and in these cases, it is always permanent.

Health Below Par

One form of treatment consists in the use of tonics containing arsenic, iron, and cod-liver oil, if the health is below par. Hexamine has been used. Various local ointments also have been suggested. One, consisting of mercuric chloride, chrysarobin with castor oil and alcohol, has been found to be satisfactory.

Alopecia areata should be treated by the physician and it is important to consult him at the first signs of baldness of this type, for he may be able to do much to save the individual from complete and permanent baldness.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

THEY stepped out into the darkness of South Street, across from the shadowy hulks of freighters. They approached the car warily, even walking past it once to make sure that it wasn't being watched. Satisfied, they retraced their steps swiftly and slid in.

McGann wheeled up Greenwich Avenue. There was still plenty of life in the Village. Couples stood in front of nightclubs and the white front coffee pots were filled. They found the address on Perry Street and again parked the car a short distance from the building which they were entering.

A dim bulb burned in the tiny foyer but they were able to find "L. Pearson" on the broken mail-boxes. McGann pressed the button, hearing a faint ring above, and they went up when they found that the door latch was not working. A woman whose gray hair was caught up in paper curls stuck her head from a second-floor door. She looked like a decorated turtle ready to snap its head back in at the first alarm. "What do you want?" she demanded suspiciously.

"Otto told us that we'd find Ambrose here," McGann said. To allay her fears, he had stopped several steps from the door. "It's important. About Mr. Tompkins." The lineup of names seemed to calm and impress her. "Just a minute." She closed the door and they heard the lock catch.

"Maybe I ought to cover the outside," Weston whispered. McGann shook his head. He said, "She asked for a minute and that's what we'll give them. Then we'll wake up the building."

But no more than thirty seconds had ticked by when they heard the shuffle of approaching foot-steps and the door again opened. Pearson looked at them with eyes full of fear. "The detective," he said. "And Mr. Weston. But what is it?"

"We want to talk to you, Pearson," McGann said shortly. "We'll come in."

They pushed past the butler, who had pulled a short blue robe over a nightshirt which flapped about his bare shanks. There was a light on in the small living room filled with heavy, old furniture. They faced him there. "I want that record," McGann said.

Pearson tugged at the robe cord with shaking hands. "I knew I shouldn't have done it," he whimpered. "I knew it. But I just couldn't resist it." He gazed at them imploringly. "Believe me, gentlemen, it was my first crime. Or, my word—"

Weston had his neck out like one of the butler's feathered friends spotting a grub. "Holy smoke!" he said. He stared at McGann. "A confession. He done it!"

Even McGann was looking queerly at the butler. He said sharply, "What crime?"

Pearson seemed ready to collapse. "Theft," he moaned. "I admit it. I was going to keep it. In fifteen years with Mr. Tompkins, gentlemen, it is the only thing I ever took. On my oath—" "Get it," McGann said.

Pearson tottered to the hall closet and dragged a worn briefcase from the shelf. For a moment he fumbled with the catches, then suddenly he pulled the record out with quivering fingers. It gleamed warmly in the lamplight as he thrust it at them. "Take it," he quavered. "Take it. I never meant—"

Four things happened almost simultaneously in the next split-second: Pearson's unsure foot caught on the rug, the record sailed through the air like a black discus, McGann yelled, "Heads up!" and the leading edge clipped Weston across the Adam's Apple. The record dropped unharmed into his outstretched hands.

McGann grabbed it. "Good boy!" he said. "Help Mr. Pearson up." Weston made straining noises. His fists were clenched. "It's got to stop," he said. "This is positively the last time."

McGann was inspecting the disc. It was cut on only one side and bore no identification label in the center. Pearson had gained his feet amid profuse apologies. McGann cut him off. "Is there a record player here?"

"Oh, no, sir. I'd ordered one for home."

"Never mind," McGann said. "We'll take it along. Come on, Dink." He paused to pick up the briefcase and glance through it, then eyed the ex-butler. "You're sure this is the right one? You wouldn't slip me a ringer?"

"That's the one Mr. Holton gave me to deliver," Pearson said fervently. He hopped sideways to the door as they went out. "It was just that it was the master's own voice, sir. I was fascinated when I learned it existed." He was almost weeping. "Mr. Tompkins was always kind to me. There won't be any more trouble, will there, sir? I give you my sacred—"

McGann stopped at the door. "Go back to bed, Mr. Pearson, and don't say anything about this to anyone." He smiled. "You're as safe as a swallow in a barn." He tapped the record. "I may even be able to get you a copy."

Murmurs of "Thank you, sir!" followed them down the stairs. Weston said, "You want me to hold that while you see if the coast is clear?"

"I'll see if the coast is clear and I'll hold onto this, too," McGann said. "I hope I never have to live through another minute like that with you and Butties bawling this thing back and forth. You'd think it was the check."

"Di Maggio never made a better catch," Weston boasted. McGann stepped out and immediately stepped back in. "Radio car," he said. They flattened against the wall on either side of the door and in a moment the police car drove leisurely past. McGann counted ten and they slipped out, walking with purpose but unhurriedly to the convertible.

As they turned north, Weston suggested, "There's an all-night music store on Broadway where you can run it off."

"I've got a little player at home," McGann said. "One tube and six needles. We'll hear it there if O'Callahan doesn't jump out when we lift the lid."

They circled the apartment building twice, left the car down the block and went in. McGann pulled the shades before turning on the lights. He got out the record player and blew dust from the top. Weston said, "That looks like a model Edison abandoned."

"Old Faithful," McGann said. "I used to play soft numbers on this and lovely young things leaned on me like hollyhocks in a high wind." He plugged it in and in a moment a faint hum came on. Swiftly, he slipped the record to the turntable, clicked it on and lowered the needle. He said, "Take it away, Ronnie."

"Good evening," Ronnie Tompkins said, exactly as he had before. He chuckled. "You weren't expecting me tonight, were you? But you know I'd rather die than miss a party."

Weston started to say something but McGann waved him to silence. He sat on a chair hunched up close to the speaker and now he rested his chin on his hand and closed his eyes in concentration.

"At one time or another, all of you meant something rather special to me. You were grifters mostly, playing 'Good Time Ronnie' for what was in it. But don't look like that. I wasn't fooled and I loved you for what you were."

The smooth voice flowed into the room, filling it with gentle sarcasm, changing abruptly to bitter recriminations and back to unctuous patronage. McGann sat motionless, following the macabre monologue.

"Go on, now, with your party, my friends and my loves." Once more the low, self-satisfied laugh. "I'm with you, you know. I'm here."

McGann leaned over and shut it off, sitting for a moment with his hand on the control. When he looked at Weston the reporter seemed to have grown a shade paler. "You talked with Tompkins a hundred times," McGann said. "How'd he sound to you?"

"His pixiest," Weston said. "Having fun, and he didn't really have fun very often. But it would take a gag like that to tickle him."

McGann rose. "That does it then," he said. He went over and got his cigarettes from his raincoat pocket and flicked the match to a tray. He added thoughtfully, "It'll be a hard thing to prove."

"Either quit talking in riddles or give me the combination to the icebox," Weston said. "Better still, do both."

"One turn to the right," McGann said. "Don't touch anything that's moving."

The hour before dawn was deathly quiet. A palpable stillness hung over the city, the building, made itself felt in the room. McGann smoked and paced restlessly, lost in thought. Weston munched a sandwich and drank beer from a bottle. They both jumped when the telephone rang.

"Probably Otto," Weston said, "trying to get even."

McGann reached the instrument in three strides. "Hello." There was a muted buzzing. "Hello," he said again and this time Chary spoke. Her voice sounded faint and far away, and there was a sob in it.

"I'm sorry," she said. "You won't see me again. There was a pause and the tears broke through. "It will be better this way. I don't know what happened to me... really I don't..."

"Listen, Chary," McGann said. "Listen to me. Are you at the hotel now? I'll—"

"Just far away," she said. "Don't ask me where. Far enough that no one will ever find me... ever..."

McGann swung on Weston. "There's a pay phone in the lobby. Get down there and trace this call. I'll hold the line open as long as I can."

The door slammed behind the reporter and McGann flinched. If there was one time he didn't want neighbors pounding on the wall this was it. Chary's voice still came over the line. She was weeping openly now. "Sometimes things happen... and people do things they never dreamed they would... or could..."

"Listen to me," McGann said once more and then he gave up trying to break in, listening instead to the tragic singing that droned on almost as if she were explaining something to herself.

"Being sorry doesn't do any good, does it? It sounds so useless... and yet that's all there is to say... except goodbye." The receiver clicked down.

Fireworks Expected When Senators Question Acheson | Foresee Heated Sessions At MacArthur Hearings

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Look for the biggest and most heated developments in the MacArthur investigations to come when Secretary of State Dean Acheson undergoes questioning by the Senate probers. Republicans, who have repeatedly called for Acheson's ouster, won't pull any punches when they grill the cabinet officer. He can expect a hot session on the stand and may have to testify longer than any other witness.

Recent statements by both President Truman and Acheson himself that he will remain in the cabinet post have only added fuel to the GOP drive for the secretary of state's scalp.

Furthermore, there are several Democrats among the Senate group who have been critical of Acheson to some degree. They can be expected to join the Republicans in putting Acheson on the hot seat.

The big question of course is—exactly what did Acheson have to do with the firing of MacArthur? GOP senators suspect that he may have been the guiding hand behind the move and will not let up until they have the fully story on where Acheson stood.

● STALIN GETS FILLED IN—Few Americans probably are aware that Stalin & Co. is getting just as good coverage on the MacArthur hearings as the people in the United States.

Published testimony is running close to the half million word mark but it isn't known just how much of it has been sent to Moscow.

An American woman reporter for Tass, official Soviet news agency, and her associates transmit most of it direct to New York where it is "processed" and relayed to Moscow.

It is reasonable to assume that a good chunk of the testimony goes to the Kremlin where it can be evaluated. The news stories in Pravda and other Soviet journals are for public consumption. But the Politburo must have the facts to make high policy decisions.

That's why the Kremlin considers the high transmission costs worth the expense.

● BEEF PRICES—The administration is determined to keep its new beef price controls in force despite the loud protest from the industry. Price control officials say there is no chance the ceilings will be lifted. In fact, there may be a general tightening of curbs on food prices because of the effect of those prices on the program to stabilize the cost of living.

Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston repeatedly has emphasized that he is concerned about food prices and recently warned Congress he would ask for a more rigid law to control them if they continue to rise.

However, don't look for any stabilizing of prices before mid-summer. Price control officials still hope to reach a line by then at which upward can be held. In the meantime, prices will continue to inch upward.

● MORE BEEF—Price Controller Michael DiSalle is not the only one who has been getting complaints from United States cattlemen on the price and distribution of beef.

European Command Headquarters of the Army has announced that it has been forced to forego its experiment in buying beef from Hungary in an attempt to feed American occupation forces from the European larder.

The foreign meat purchase "test program" went into effect early this spring, ending May 31. The comptroller general has ruled, however, that the Defense Appropriation Act of 1951 prohibits the use of funds for any beef except that grown in the United States.

So the Army will once again "buy American" at inflated prices, pay the cost of hauling from this country to the occupation zones overseas and let the taxpayers "beef" if they want to.

Brownie Troop 13 Goes On Season's First Camp-Out

Brownie Troop 13 was the first in Pickaway County to take advantage of Summer vacation and trek to Girl Scout Camp at Gold Cliff Park for a day's outing.

Despite the chilly morning the young campers were up and out at the camp for the flag-raising ceremony and a breakfast cooked over the outdoor fireplace.

The morning was spent in nature hikes and supervised games. At noon they ate their "nose-bag" lunch and then more camping.

One of the day's highlights was a story prepared and read by Mrs. George Bowers on the history of their camp site dating back to the days when Indian tribes were camped in that vicinity.

Young girls on the camping excursion were Carolyn Barnes, Frieda Ann Mader, Marilyn Manbeavers, Carole Weller, Sandra Sue Young, Nancy Myers, Carol Harrison, Judith Ann Norman, Suellen Hang, Joanne Goldschmidt, Florene Goldschmidt, Elizabeth Grant, Ann Steele, Carolyn Metcalfe, Sharon Hedges, Barbara Samuel, and Mary Cochran.

Mrs. Norbert Cochran acted as camping leader and was assisted by Mrs. Robert Hedges, Mrs. George Barnes, Mrs. William Steele and Mrs. Dave Goldschmidt.

Miss Sally Eshelman accompanied the group as a senior Scout.

HE OUTLIVES 7 'WIDOWS' Stage Star At 52 Claims He Still Is Very Youthful

HOLLYWOOD, June 7—For a man who has out-lived seven "widows," Carl Brisson appears particularly frisky.

He stood in the center of the room doing an intricate dance and swinging his arms wildly:

"There is no monopoly on vim and vigor after 50 by Ezio Pinza. I'm still going strong, and things look better all the time."

Brisson, 52, tall, handsome and blond, had just scored another hit as Prince Danilo in "The Merry Widow."

The "widows" who dropped by the wayside were feminine leads in composer Franz Lehár's memorable "The Merry Widow."

Brisson, who first starred in the role in 1931, bested younger aspirants for the lead in the revised production by Edwin Lester and is packing them in at the Philharmonic.

THE TALL DANE born Carl Petersen, demonstrated the dance that got him into show business. Any boxing fan the world over would have recognized the dance as the shuffle boxers use when punching the light bag. Brisson delivered a vicious left hook at no one in particular and said:

"Yep, that's the way it was. I

Share Of Taxes Sees City Balance Jump Upward

Circleville has received a total general tax distribution of $26,108.36 from Pickaway County.

The information came from City Councilman George Crites, chairman of council's finance committee.

Crites said that $4,105.73 for bonds, $1,932.10 for police and firemen pension funds and $8.98 for delinquent sewer expenses was deducted from the total distribution sum, leaving the city with $20,061.55 to boost the general fund.

Prior to the distribution the general fund balance was $2,609.09.

Crites said that last year's general tax distribution to the city was $19,861.54.

The finance committee chairman said that the following expenses were deducted from the city's share of the general distribution: election, $964.23; workmen's compensation, $1,070.13; advertising for delinquent taxes, $36.02; and state examiners, $27.20.

CITY COUNCIL has approved a financial report from City Auditor Lillian Young for May. The report was as follows:

General fund receipts, $6,607.66; expenditures, $8,324.28; balance, $2,609.09; water works operating fund receipts, $5,409.89; expenditures, $2,658.90; balance, $2,419.06; sewage disposal fund receipts, $556.98; expenditures, $1,418.01; balance, $4,339.54; auto street repair fund receipts, $5,524.52; expenditures, $1,490.45; balance, $7,856.28; gasoline tax fund receipts, $3,098.00; expenditures, $1,712.22; balance, $5,185.43.

Water works trust fund receipts, $50.00; expenditures, $55; balance, $1,170; sanitary sewer lift station expenditures, $4,231.90; balance, $17,406.91; police pension fund receipts, $129.72; expenditures, $275.56; balance, $7,788.38; fireman pension receipts, $62.18; expenditures, $125; balance, $8,298.07; water works extension, improvement fund balance, $31,350.31.

Collections from parking meters totaled $1,538, while $204.90 was collected from city admission tax.

Painters Shun Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON, June 7—About 500 American Federation of Labor painters, demanding a 10 cents an hour pay boost and ban on spray guns, declined today to work in the White House and a score of other government buildings.

A spokesman said that the employers were willing to boost the $2.30 an hour the painters now earn, but want the raise to become effective only with newly contracted work.

LOSES 33 POUNDS WITHOUT DIETING

"I am 37 years of age and since taking Rennie have lost 33 lbs. in about three months," writes Mrs. Donald Imhoff, R. R. No. 1, West Chester, Ohio. "I can't praise Rennie Concentrate too highly. As I am only 5 feet tall I now look so much better in my clothes and have a waistline again. All my friends keep telling me how much better I look. With Rennie I can eat plenty, yet still lose weight. Rennie deserves all the praise I can give it."

Imagine, eat plenty and lose weight with this simple yet effective amazing home recipe. After purchasing a bottle of Rennie from your drugist pour the contents into a pint bottle and add just did my punching bag dance with a top hat and tails on, and I was on my way in show business."

Brisson credited his wife and the late W. C. Fields for bringing about the change in his profession.

As Carl Petersen, he had done right well in the boxing ring. He had fought 72 times, won 66 bouts and had just become European light-heavy-weight champ in 1923 when the famed comedian Fields talked him into singing and dancing for money.

Brisson has been up and down. Knighted in Denmark and Sweden, he later found himself out of a job and no place to go during World War II.

It was then that he found what he calls the "saloon business."

Brisson said:

"I found I could go over in the night clubs. Frankly, the saloon business is the aristocracy of show business."

"Where else can you get the best accommodations in the finest hotels in the world, go downstairs and sing a few numbers and make all that money?"

BUT BRISSON, for old times' sake, is getting a bang out of his reappearance as Prince Danilo in "The Merry Widow."

Asked if he felt the weight of the years, Brisson jumped to his feet and whirled to face us:

"Me old? Just look at me. I'm six feet one inches tall, I'm 52 years old and I still weigh the 172 pounds I weighed when I was a fighter."

He inhaled deeply, burst into an aria and said triumphantly:

"And I can still sing. Me and Pinza have got this thing worked out just right."

Mrs. Brisson opened the door quietly.

"Bedtime," she said.

He followed docilely.

Divorce Asked By Husband Here

A divorce petition has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Carl Morris against Annabelle Morris, giving gross neglect of duty as the grounds.

The husband's petition states they were married Nov. 23, 1936. They have one child. He asks for the divorce, custody of the child and that the defendant be denied alimony.

Looking Ahead

By George Benson
President
Hardin College

In high schools, colleges and universities throughout the nation, hundreds of thousands of young men and women are graduating. Since they are a part of the intellectual leadership of their generation, their thinking and their actions will influence the course of history.

The column today is directed to these youth. Its substance is taken from my address to the high school graduates of Chicago public schools. The title was "Today's Challenge to American Youth."

The occasion was the 25th Chicago Central Civic Assembly climaxing Chicago Youth Week. The program was under the auspices of the Chicago Public School System, the Chicago Youth Week Federation, and the Junior Association of Commerce and Industry.

In the visible audience were 100 graduating Seniors and some 200 school officials and other distinguished guests. The seniors had been selected, two from each of the 50 Chicago high schools, on the basis of outstanding citizenship accomplishments. The invisible audience included the 50,000 students, as well as the faculties, of the 50 high schools, gathered in special assemblies to hear the program via radio.

TO THE YOUTH OF Chicago—and America—six challenges:

Your first challenge is to help build the necessary national strength to deter aggression which might blot out our Western civilization. While American industry must build the weapons, only youth has the vigorous individual strength and endurance to create the necessary fighting force. You are challenged to defend your country and to preserve freedom for your own and future generations.

You are challenged secondly to build the unparalleled American living standard 100 percent higher than it is today. You can actually give the average American at the close of your generation a purchasing power in food, clothing, housing, travel, entertainment and education 100 percent higher than we now have. Progress resulting from our ever-increasing volume of research and industrial know-how give assurance that America can continue to increase man-hour productivity by at least three percent a year for another generation—if the American system is kept on the beam.

But through all the 6,000 years of human history are accounts of nations which, after creating wealth, fell into factions, developed corruption, fought among themselves—and ultimately were destroyed. In America industrial strife, crime and political corruption have reached alarming proportions. Your third challenge is to rise to the responsibilities of citizenship—demand law enforcement and integrity of public officials, and help achieve the industrial peace essential to continued progress.

There is a tendency today to fear the future. So your fourth challenge is to have courage to venture out into the greatest frontiers any generation of youth ever faced. The agricultural frontiers of our grandfathers were insignificant in comparison to the scientific frontiers of today. With faith in yourself, faith in your fellow-men, and faith in your God, have the courage to venture out and pioneer.

OUT OF THE DEEP religious life of the Founding Fathers was born our American way of life with its political, economic, social and educational freedoms. As the pioneers advanced westward, one of the first buildings in each new settlement was a place to worship God. Our first colleges were primarily for training religious leadership. But today our religious habits and practices are gradually giving way before the onslaught of Godless materialism. Therefore your fifth challenge is to repair the breaches in the walls and restore the religious foundations which constitute the only known basis for freedom.

Should you do all these things, you must not be willing to live in an oasis alone, while much of the world lives in darkness, poverty, ignorance and starvation.

Your sixth challenge is to carry American industrial know-how, a new moral integrity and the highest religious principles to the backward people—and make a better world for all the human race.

I believe in American youth and I believe you will rise to face successfully these great challenges.

Pettit To Get Navy Air Cruise

Three weeks of training are in store for Midshipman Thomas E.

Pettit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Pettit of 475 North Pickaway street, who, beginning Aug. 11, will participate in Operation CAMID VI, a combination of amphibious training with aircraft carrier indoctrination and a series of continental air cruises.

He will undergo the amphibious training at the U.S. Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Va., with other midshipmen from the U. S. Naval Academy. Air cruises will be made to various naval air stations and Air force bases.

Showdown In UN Seen Coming Soon

Korea Question
To Be Fully Aired

FLUSHING MEADOW, June 7 — United Nations diplomats noted increasing developments toward a showdown on Korea between the government of Communist China and UN countries with troops in the Korean war.

Top leaders said privately that a "break" in the diplomatic stalemate is due soon, probably not very long after U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson has completed current Senate testimony.

The silence of Peiping to UN Secretary General Trygve Lie's appeal for a cease-fire on the 38th Parallel has dispelled any optimism for an early peaceful settlement which may have existed among non-Communist UN members.

Hopes among others that the Soviet Union might step in to call off the Chinese and talk peace in the Far East also were dashed more or less by recent negative statements of Soviet Delegate Jacob Malik and Polish Communist Spokesman Julius Katz-Suchy.

A SIGNIFICANT FACT is that the Western camp consequently is talking more actively again of additional punitive measures against Red China, possibly expanding the arms embargo at an early date into an economic blockade.

It is understood on good authority, however, that the stepping-up of UN sanctions against Peiping will be preceded by another major peace overture. Prevailing opinion is that it will be in the form of the long-heralded but delayed statement of aims and principles by the 16 nations with troops in Korea.

The majority of UN diplomats, however, have taken to heart the fact that each UN peace overture is treated with contempt in Peiping or is ignored. They see no reason to expect a different response from Peiping either to Lie or to the anticipated 16-nation statement.

A forerunner of "tougher" policy to come in UN in its relations with Peiping is the stiffening attitude Britain has begun to display.

At Tuesday's meetings of the trusteeship council, Britain cast its vote for the first time against a Soviet motion to consider the unseating of the Nationalist Chinese delegate and the seating of the Peiping spokesman.

At the same time, British Delegate Sir Alan Burns in an implied warning excoriated Peiping for staging "offensive after offensive" in Korea.

THE BRITISH VOTE and Sir Alan's sharp statement were taken by UN diplomats as indicating that the British government is slowly veering into line for diplomatic sanctions against Peiping.

It can be said at the same time that Red China's past defiance of UN by now has sealed any hope of a seat in the world organization for Peiping. Acheson's declaration to the Senate that the Communists "cannot shoot their way into UN" confirmed in many official minds here that the situation has been reached where Communist China's entry into UN is out of the question while the Korean fighting lasts.

Formosa Plans Aid Mainland

NEW YORK, June 7 — The Chinese Nationalist delegate to the United Nations said today that the residents of the mainland have been so abused and oppressed under Communist rule that they want to destroy the Peiping regime.

Dr. Tingfu F. Tsiang pledged that his government on Formosa will give all possible aid to the mainlanders in this fight, and will continue the job "no matter what other governments may or may not do."

Night After Night Do You Toss and Turn—

When Excess Stomach Acids Rob You of Sleep?

Do You Get Up In the Morning Feeling
Washed Up—Worn Out—Miserable

Thousands find that by neutralizing excess stomach acids — sleep comes more naturally and without drugs. Today's worries — hurried meals — too much food — drink or tobacco — can quickly create a miserable upset excess stomach acid condition bringing on acid indigestion — gas — heartburn — jittery, nerve-racking days and restless, sleepless nights.

Striking at night—such attacks can surely "raise hob" with your night's rest. Hour after hour, you toss and turn until finally you may feel forced to take a sleeping pill to get only a few hours of troubled sleep.

Why continue? why not do as thousands do? Neutralize these excess stomach acids with quick-acting harmless Neutracid—contains no Soda—the prescription of a well known physician. You simply dissolve one teaspoonful in a glass of water. In liquid form, it goes right to work (1) neutralizing the excess acid (2) to soothe and calm the stomach (3) to help you get a sound, natural sleep and feel like yourself again.

Take good advice—start taking Neutracid tonight. Forget all about sleeping pills and see just what safe, effective Neutracid will do for you.

You can get Neutracid at Circleville Retail Drugs or any good drug store.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

"Is it normal for a boy in early school grades to trade his belongings? What can be done to keep him from disposing of things which his parents have bought for him—not too valuable perhaps—but the things a boy of that age likes to possess?" So a mother writes.

I must have been about ten years old when one day in school Charley Atkinson said to me, "Whole blade or no trade," as he held his large penknife toward me with blades closed so I could see only part of the blades of his knife nearest the hinges.

I had never seen his knife before but had a pretty good one of my own, which he had seen. I agreed to a trade. Then I discovered that the knife I got in this trade had only one whole blade. I protested but Charley insisted that a trade is a trade.

I decided to take up the matter with my father, naively supposing he would get Charley to trade back as my father and Charley's were close friends. But my father said I would have to stick to the bargain. Then he warned me in ways I clearly understood that I should never sell or trade my belonging.

AFTER WE HAD children of our own I learned that this mat-

1949-50 school year, but was given notice on March 28, 1950 that he would not be re-hired.

The court held that his action in provoking a walkout of students two days after he received his dismissal notice, would in itself be sufficient for his dismissal.

IF, AT THE AGE of four or even six or older, your child has traded or bought an article from a playmate, go first to confer with his parents alone to ascertain whether these other parents would want their child's property restored to him or would see that their own child should stick to his bargain. Then make clear to your child he must not trade, sell, receive as a gift or give away any of his belongings without approval of the parents of both children involved.

Property Ownership

Young children don't have sufficient experience to be allowed to make such exchanges of property ownership.

As for your own child, insist that he cannot require return of possessions he has bartered, sold or give away. Hold him to his side of the bargain, even if in some extreme instances you might choose to buy him a similar or equivalent object. Aim to limit your child's exchange of property to the usual commercial avenues.

There are more than 100,000 model-railroad enthusiasts in the United States.

ter of trading single objects, bartering or selling their own possessions was prevalent among young children, and caused many quarrels between children, even among parents. So we vigilantly proceeded to prevent it among our own children. It was not so difficult a problem to handle with these children as they usually did not have more things than most of their playmates had. It was still easier for my parents as we children were decidedly limited in the possessions we might have traded or sold.

Obviously, children with many more material things given them by their parents than most of their playmates, are the more ready to trade, sell or give away their things.

Yet all young children tend to want later to have back the possessions they have so disposed of.

If your child, say he is from two to five, brings home a toy he says another child has given him, do not question his report. Persuade him to go with you and return the toy to the owner, explaining that the former owner might change his mind and want it back. Do this after winning agreement to the plan from the former owner's parents.

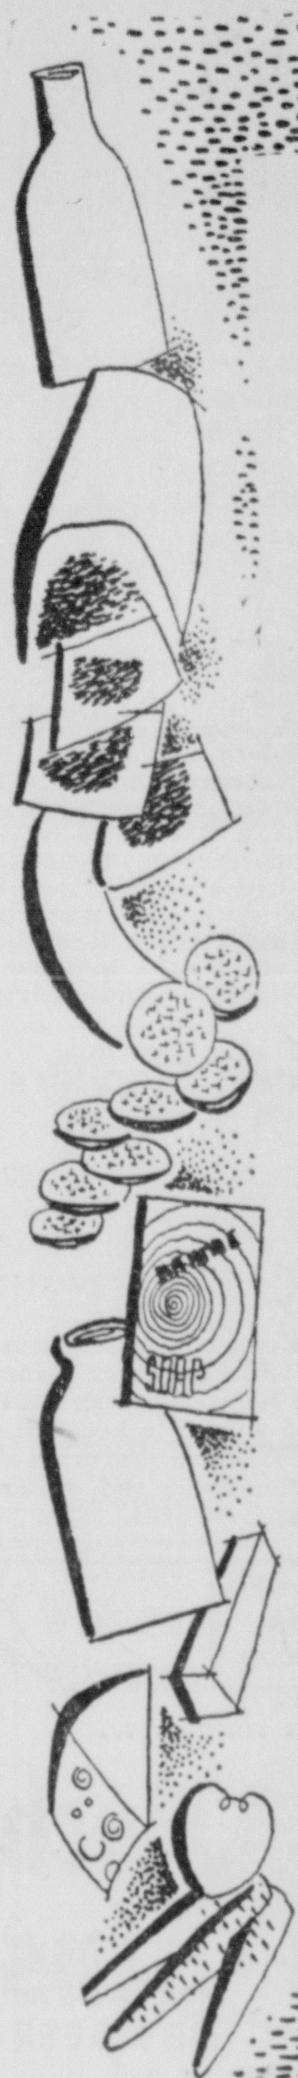

3 Men Fined For Burglary

DEFIANCE, June 7 — Three men who mixed beer, burglary and teen-age girls are under suspended one-year prison terms today.

The men were fined $100 each by Juvenile Judge J. R. Polock in Defiance for contributing to the delinquency of two 17-year-old girls by taking them beer and food from a tavern they had previously burglarized.

The trio was identified as Donald V. Brown, 25, of Oakwood; John R. Ericson, 23, of Paulding, and Leo Blue, 20, of Defiance.

There are more than 100,000 model-railroad enthusiasts in the United States.

SCIENTISTS CITE FUNDS

Cheaper Drugs May Come By Using Atom-Smasher

KALAMAZOO, June 7—Scientists in a lead-lined Kalamazoo laboratory have reported "promising" results in efforts to produce cheaper, more powerful strains of penicillin by bombarding the organism with two million volts of atom-smashing energy.

A team of biochemists and physicists at the vast plant of the Upjohn Co.—first pharmaceutical firm to use atomic energy's Van De Graaf electron accelerator for industrial purposes—said several new strains already have been isolated for tests against bacteria.

The massive accelerator first was designed to hurl a beam of electrons at target atoms. But now the target is the tiny, sub-microscopic penicillin mold.

The electron beam acts like an x-ray to produce mutants—new forms—of the antibiotic.

Upjohn scientists already have perfected a new strain of penicillin that produces no allergic skin reaction in patients sensitive to other forms of the drug.

DISCOVERY OF THE mutant penicillin strains, they explained, was a byproduct of their ma-

Circleville Trio Plans Attending Rose Conference

Mr. and Mrs. Mack Noggle and Robert Brehmer are to leave Friday by rail for the U.S. Northwest where they will visit several points of interest in the next three weeks.

In Chicago, they will join a group of Ohioans making the tour which includes visits to Banff and Lake Louise in British Columbia, Vancouver, Portland and Seattle where they will attend the American Rose Society Spring meeting.

They plan to continue their trip through California visiting other cities and returning via the Southern route.

They will make a stop at Grand Canyon where, according to Noggle, "Brehmer will be making movies and I'll be taking stills (conventional camera shots)."

WASHINGTON, June 7—Ill health was blamed today for the resignation of Seth W. Richardson, chairman of the subversive activities control board.

Richardson resigned, effective June 30, because, he said, surgery he must undergo will incapacitate him for several months.

President Truman accepted the resignation, but expressed "reluctance and heartfelt regret" in the action.

Higher Prices For Eggs Seen On Horizon

WASHINGTON, June 7—Agriculture officials indicated today that farmers will probably get higher prices for their eggs for the rest of this year.

Production hasn't changed much from last year, they said, but demand is getting heavier as defense production increases the nation's purchasing power.

At the same time, stocks in the major cities are lower than they have been in years. Agriculture marketing specialists report that the one and a quarter million cases in storage on May 26 were half the number of a year ago.

Officials said the nation's poultrymen are now approaching a period of light production, which with the other factors involved, would probably tend to keep fresh egg prices high.

During May, however, supplies were still more than enough to meet needs, although quality deviations became more pronounced and top quality eggs became harder to get as the month progressed.

Joan Fontaine Denies Aly Tieup

LONDON, June 6—Joan Fontaine said on her arrival in London today that she found Prince

Aly Khan "a very delightful person" in Paris, but they are nothing more to each other than "good friends."

The actress danced and dined with Aly in Paris and left behind in the French capital a welter of rumors linking her romantically with the handsome prince from whom Rita Hayworth is seeking a divorce. It was these rumors Joan sought to dispel.

POLITBURO IS IN JEOPARDY

Supreme Court's Decision Defines Liberty, License

NEW YORK, June 7—A working majority of the U. S. Supreme Court has just done its fellow citizens a handsome service.

The majority has wrestled with a tough problem: The headline that divides liberty from license, and has come up with an answer to one of the most troubling problems of our day.

The court, on the face of it, has affirmed the conviction of the eleven leaders of the American Communist Party. But the decision goes much deeper than that.

What the Supreme Court has said and done in this instance will help crystallize the opinion of millions of plain Americans who have not known how to reconcile, with justice and calm, their devotion to free speech with their repugnance for Communism and all its works.

ONE OF THE GREAT questions confronting the nation has been how to protect both free speech and the country, itself, without injury to either.

Now six of the "Nine Old Men" have come up with the answer.

"Overthrow of the government by force or violence is certainly a substantial enough interest for the government to limit free speech," Chief Justice Vinson said in delivering the majority opinion.

"Indeed this is the ultimate value of our society, for if a society cannot protect its very structure from armed internal attack, it must follow that no subordinate value can be protected.

"If, then, this interest may be protected, the literal problem which is presented is what has been meant by the use of the phrase 'clear and present danger' of the utterances bringing about the evil within the power of Congress to punish.

"Obviously, the words cannot mean that before the government may act, it must wait until the putsch is about to be executed, the plans have been laid and the signal is awaited.

"The mere fact that from the period of 1945 to 1948 the petitioners' activities did not result in the overthrow of the government by force and violence is of course no answer to the fact that there was a group that was ready to make the attempt—

"PETITIONERS intended to overthrow the government of the United States as speedily as the circumstances would permit. Their conspiracy to organize the Communist Party and to teach and advocate the overthrow of the government of the United States by force and violence created 'a clear and present danger' of an attempt to overthrow the government by force and violence."

Such advocacy, the majority says in effect, is license, not liberty. The nation, so the court has decided, does not have to sit helplessly by, out of exaggerated deference to free speech, while a man or group of men talks it to death.

It is obvious that the Supreme Court does not believe that the First Amendment, guaranteeing free speech, was originally advanced in order ultimately to strangle the country.

The court has closed the doors of the federal prison on the Politburo and helped clarify the American mind as to the difference between liberty and license. But it has done something much more:

It has hung the sword of Damocles over the head of every American comrade.

What had happened to the Politburo can happen to any other comrade, too, who has conspired to teach and advocate the overthrow of the American government by force and violence.

The party's 53,000 members—more or less—have never been in such a tight corner before.

Now that the Supreme Court has confirmed the lower court's conviction of the Politburo, there will probably be a clamor to outlaw the party as a legal political entity. But even outlawing the party would scarcely place the comrades in such an unhappy spot as they occupy today.

The comrades, in a word, are in jeopardy, and it couldn't happen to a more deserving group.

REA Boasting Huge Growth

WASHINGTON, June 7 — The nation's farmers are using so much electric power that power lines have now been developed and built that can carry voltage to rural areas that is twice as high as previous standards set by the Rural Electrification Administration, and six times as high as the standard of 15 years ago.

The REA says the new voltage will provide four times as much power with the same size conductor and serve customers 70 miles from the source of power.

Hungary Office Being Reopened

CLEVELAND, June 7 — The Hungarian government's consulate in Cleveland, closed since 1950, is expected to open its new offices for business within the next 10 days.

The consulate was closed last year as a diplomatic retaliation against Hungary for the imprisonment of Robert Vogel, International Telephone and Telegraph Co. executive.

The U. S. granted permission for the reopening as one of the terms for the release of Vogel.

Brannan Denies Wheat Shortage Facing Nation

WASHINGTON, June 7—Agriculture Secretary Brannan today struck down reports of an impending wheat shortage in the U. S. and predicted that supplies in the next 12 months will meet both foreign and domestic needs.

Brannan forecast a 1951 wheat crop of nearly one billion bushels—about 682 million bushels of winter wheat and approximately 309 million bushels of spring wheat. This would be about the same as last year's wheat production.

Brannan said that a crop of this size, plus an expected carryover of around 400 million bushels on July 1, should take care of both foreign and domestic demands, including about 200 million tons for India.

Brannan's remarks came on the heels of new reports of crop failure in the drought-stricken and insect-plagued states of the Southern Great Plains. In some counties, 70 percent of the seeded acreage has been lost and abandonment of winter wheat fields in Oklahoma has been the heaviest in 40 years.

Special Grand Jury Summoned

BOWLING GREEN, June 7—A special Wood County grand jury will convene June 13 to consider the case against a 34-year-old veterinarian charged with a series of lovers' lane attacks.

County Prosecutor Floyd A. Collier said he had ordered the special session to study evidence in the case of Dr. James Bridenstine Jr. who pleaded innocent to "malicious intent to maim or disfigure with a corrosive or caustic substance" and "intent to rob and assault." He was unable to post bond of $13,000 immediately and was jailed.

Hernando de Soto's first visit to Florida's west coast, where he landed in 1539, is marked by the De Soto Oak in Plant park, Tampa. The tree now has a limb spread of 117 feet.

Inheritance Tax Determined In Two Estates

Determinations of inheritance taxes due on two estates have been filed in Pickaway County probate court.

J. Wallace Crist is required to pay a tax of $1,245.20 on an inheritance of $76,514.62 from the Catherine Crist estate.

On the estate of M. Seymour Millar inheritance tax payments are required of the following:

Emma P. Millar, widow, $35.65 tax on a succession of $8,565.30; Louise Millar Cromley and Sarah MacMahon, daughters, each $50.12 on successions of $8,514.44.

Also in probate court an application for transfer of 100 acres in Madison Township, part of the Cora B. Fisher estate, to William Wood of Ashville has been approved by Judge George D. Young.

NCAA Unhappy As Penn Plans Football Television

PHILADELPHIA, June 7 — The University of Pennsylvania found itself apparently alone today in its refusal to obey the National College Athletic Association ban on televising football games.

From the NCAA itself and from some of Penn's scheduled grid rivals came strong opposition to the stand expressed yesterday by Francis T. Murray, the Red and Blue athletic director.

Murray's telegram to NCAA President Dr. Hugh C. Willett at the University of Southern California said the Philadelphia school "will not combine in a ban on television."

In Los Angeles, Dr. Willett said he had spoken by telephone to Harold E. Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania, and had found Penn's position "astonishing."

Some sources predicted that Penn's move might place its 1951 schedule in jeopardy, since its prospective opponents have agreed to go along with the college group's TV ruling.

ASA BUSHNELL, secretary-treasurer of the Eastern College Athletic Conference, indicated that the university might find it hard to locate opponents.

He pointed out that 91 eastern colleges are affiliated with the ECAC, which observes NCAA regulations.

Tom Hamilton, athletic director at the University of Pittsburgh and chairman of the NCAA television committee, commented:

"By breaking away, Penn is setting itself apart and, incidentally, taking advantage of the artificial vacuum caused by the willingness of other schools to pass up financial gain this year."

Hamilton recalled that NCAA members voted 161 to 7 to "limit and control television for one year to experimental programs."

The association first prohibited all college football telecasts and then decided upon a program of selected weekly games to be sold in a $1 million package to a TV sponsor.

Of the $1 million, the NCAA would receive 60 percent and the participating teams would divide the remaining 40 percent.

In his wire to Willett, Murray said Penn "will carry on as an obligation to its alumni, friends and public its record of television, dividing the revenue with the other universities and colleges which it plays."

Murray urged that the NCAA either call a special meeting to reconsider its policy or postpone the ban for a year.

He said he had been advised by counsel that it would be a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act if Pennsylvania joined in a nationwide ban or control of televising college athletic events.

IT'S SKIDOO for Leo Durocher, 2, and his son, Chris, too. The boss man of the Giants and son scam off the field after a game in the Polo Grounds. The Giants now have bounced back in the pennant chase after 11 straight losses. (International)

Dr. Heine Begins Senior Golf Test In Columbus

Dr. Walter F. Heine of Circleville was slated to tee off at 1:36 p. m. Thursday at Scioto Country Club in Columbus during the 1951 Ohio Seniors golf tournament.

The local doctor-golfer was paired in his opening round of the tournament with Dr. Floyd Green and C. H. Gimeinhardt, both of Columbus.

A field of 159 Ohio golfers who have passed the 50-year-old mark are entered in the 36-hole match, which will end Friday.

Allen Rankin, due here Tuesday for a program to honor Circleville's state champ high school golf team, is defending champion in the tourney for the fifth time in six years.

Oldest player entered is W. A. Haines of Troy. Haines is 82. George Hedges, 80, and King Thompson, 75, both of Columbus, are next in line.

Locke, Mangrum Are Favorites

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., June 7—South Africa's Bobby Locke and dapper Lloyd Mangrum rule as co-favorites today as play begins in the $15,000 Palm Beach round robin golf tournament at Wykagyl Country Club.

Sixteen top golfers will play five rounds of 18 holes through Sunday. The winner is determined on a point basis as he gains or loses strokes to each of the others.

The first foursome to go into action today consists of Mangrum, PGA Champion Chandler Harper, Argentine Champ Roberto de Vicence and Locke.

Mangrum won the event last year while Locke won it twice and finished second in three tries.

Bold Scratched From Belmont

NEW YORK, June 7—Jack Amiel's Count Turf will go after the $100,000 Belmont Stakes on June 16 without any competition from Bold, Brookmeade Stable's Preakness winner.

The Kentucky Derby winner and the Preakness king were to have raced in the Belmont in what would have amounted to the three-year-old championship grudge. But yesterday Bold's owners withdrew him from the race because of "sore shins."

Buck Baseballers Eye NCAA Test

COLUMBUS, June 7 — The Ohio State university baseball team will be the first in OSU history to participate in NCAA competition tomorrow when Marty Karow's diamondmen meet visiting Western Michigan.

The Buckeyes and the Broncos from Kalamazoo will clash in the first two games of a best two out of three NCAA district four playoff series.

The survivor gets a spot in the NCAA finals in Omaha June 13-17 along with seven other NCAA schools.

Inaugural Trot Is Divided

COLUMBUS, June 7 — Bertha Rosecroft, fleet five-year-old, ran the mile in 2:08 3-5 Tuesday to divide top honors in the inaugural trot, which headlined opening night activities at near-by Hilliards Raceway.

In the eighth race, Walton Stone reversed the decision on Bertha by clicking off the one and one-sixteenth miles in 2:18 1-5.

Durocher Not Worried As Slumps Plague Rookies; They'll 'Get There'

NEW YORK, June 7 — Two raw recruits, Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees and Willie Mays of the New York Giants, have been finding the going rather rough after their sudden hop from obscurity to fame.

But Leo Durocher, pugnacious pilot of the Giants, thinks both are sure to be future baseball greats. Leo, who should know the trials and tribulations of a bushy hitting the big time, said:

"I know Mays is a coming star and from all I hear about Mantle he also can't miss making good."

"Any young fellow who has the natural talent can't miss making the grade, if he has the guts and patience. It may take time but the 'naturals' get there sooner or later."

"Nobody who hasn't been through the mill can begin to understand what a kid is up against when he is suddenly brought up from the minors to play before huge crowds in the majors."

"HE KNOWS HE IS expected to make good right off the bat. The fans have been told he is a wonder and they expect too much of him."

"So it isn't surprising if the kid begins to press a little at the plate and in the field. He is too eager and of course some of those wise old birds out on the mound notice it and take advantage of his nervousness."

"But once he gets the feel of things, and realizes the other players on the club are behind him he usually finds himself."

Durocher added:

"Sometimes a manager finds it necessary to bench the kid for a while to take some of the strain off him. Sometimes he may have to send the kid out for more seasoning in the minors."

"But if a kid has the stuff he is sure to make the grade."

"Mays is sure to be a star. I don't worry about a natural hitter going to bat 10 or 20 times without a hit. All hitters get in slumps."

"And Mays came up overnight and had to face half a dozen of the best pitchers in baseball right at the start."

"I understand Mantle went something like 26 or 27 times to bat without getting a hit. But I recall that Ty Cobb, when he was at his best, one year went 27 straight times without getting a hit. If Cobb could do that, why not a young rookie?"

"Given time, these naturals always get there."

Chandler Says Quitting Date Up To Him Alone

NEW YORK, June 7—A. B. (Happy) Chandler is all set to step down as commissioner of baseball, but he made it clear today that the date for his resignation is entirely up to himself.

Chandler said he has sent the 16 club owners a form which would guarantee him written indemnity against any damages that might accrue out of legal action against him as baseball commissioner.

With three suits now pending against baseball, each naming Chandler as defendant, the "lame duck" commissioner declared that he has no wish to be liable for the damages once he no longer is in office.

The commissioner said the form sent to club owners for them to sign contains no resignation date. He said he will fill in the date "at my own discretion."

Chandler was voted out of his $65,000 a year job by the club owners at their Winter meetings in December. He failed in March to gain the necessary twelve votes to stay in office after his contract expires in June, 1952.

A four-man committee was appointed to study the field of candidates for the job, but as yet has failed to name anyone.

OPS Effect In Grocery Is Outlined By District Chief

Aide Claims Plan Better Than OPA

Role Of Parity Is Explained

When Mrs. John Q. Public goes to the grocery this weekend to do her shopping, she probably will wonder just how much the price stabilization program has done for her food budget.

Columbus District OPS Director Edward Wagner said Thursday that Mrs. Housewife should be able to see a difference. He claimed that "in the short space of time since January, the program has reached a stage as far advanced as the wartime price control under the OPA attained in 18 months."

A recent survey by a Columbus OPS officer, in one store, showed that on 100 items, 69 showed a markdown to ceiling price and 31 were raised to ceiling, he said.

While the percentage looks pretty good there may still be a question in Mrs. Housewife's mind as to why she sees little marks on the can of condensed milk which shows that it went up one or two cents.

"This is where old parity enters the picture," according to Wagner.

Parity is the fair price established by the Department of Agriculture on a farm product. It is based upon the profit made by Mr. Farmer in the 1910-1914 period, or the average price received in the last 10 years. In other words, taking all factors of economy into consideration, it is the same average markup which he used in that period.

IF THE PROCESSOR'S cost of the raw milk was a penny more a can, the actual cost of the increase is passed along to the retailer. No profit on packaging, advertising or other overhead may be charged by the retailer.

Prices are frozen at parity. In other words, when the milk reaches the same comparative costs as they were in the base parity period the farm price is automatically frozen.

This allowance for change in cost price causes a fluctuation in Mrs. Housewife's shopping budget, but it limits the fluctuation to only the element of a fair living wage for the farmer.

Mrs. Housewife may wonder why, if applesauce was canned after the fruit was taken from the trees last year, she may pay a raise on the canned food now.

The grocer will tell her that he must keep the prices of his stock current. That is he must keep it at replacement value so as not to lose his shirt if they suddenly dropped and he was forced to sell his goods at a much lower cost.

Under OPS if this year's crop is lower in price he must reduce the price of the cans on his shelf.

The little woman is justified in asking a question like:

"Has the control over farm products been generally effective?"

WAGNER POINTS OUT that on April 28 the farm price index was 202.4 while on May 12 it had dropped to 198.5, or nearly four points.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics price index for all commodities generally has dropped from 183.1 on April 21 to 182.9 on May 12. These dry statistics mean that Americans were saving about one-third of a billion dollars on their weekly purchases.

Each one percent that the price index increased before OPS went into effect cost John Q. Public $2 billion.

Veteran Roofer Hurt In Fall

CLEVELAND, June 7—A 200-pound roofer, Ernest F. Fink, 48, who has worked for 20 years on some of Cleveland's tallest buildings, is reported in fair condition today in St. Alexis' hospital where he is recovering from injuries suffered in a four-story fall into a three-foot ditch.

The hefty roofer, was working atop the new Cleveland Pneumatic Tool Co. plant when he lost his balance and crashed through an uncompleted section to the soft earth beneath.

Man Is Sent To Lima Clinic

CLEVELAND, June 7—Wilbert Fox, 29-year-old Cleveland, was headed for Lima state hospital today and a future prison term for felonious assault of a 10-year-old girl.

Fox, charged with rape, kidnapping and felonious assault, was allowed to plead guilty to only one of three counts of his indictment yesterday in Cuyahoga County court.

Assistant County Prosecutor John J. Mahon said the state accepted a guilty plea on the felonious assault charge because it was afraid the jury might have freed Fox on grounds of insanity.

Solons To Visit Ike, But They're Not Sure Why

WASHINGTON, June 7—Mystery envelops a special 16-member House group which plans to leave tomorrow for Paris to talk to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Various explanations were given as to why the trip is being made and who requested it.

Chairman Richards, (D) S. C., of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, who will head the group, said the Defense Department recommended that the trip be made and the State Department concurred.

Rep. Vorys, (R) Ohio, said the request came from Eisenhower himself, but Rep. Herter, (R) Mass., said the committee itself initiated the idea some months ago.

Rep. Smith, (R) Wis., commented: "Nobody in our (foreign affairs) committee knows the real purpose."

Richards said the Defense Department proposed the trip on the ground that "it would be helpful to see what progress has been made before the $8.5 billion foreign aid bill is taken up."

Better Accord In Atlantic Pact Setup Is Urged

ATLANTIC CITY, June 7—Sen. Estes Kefauver, (D) Tenn., believes that the North Atlantic Pact nations have "12 different foreign policies and armies" and said some way must be found to unify them.

The senator insisted there is now "bickering and disagreement" among the Allies and called for a meeting of the nations to work out a system where the countries can "stand together" in foreign policy and military affairs.

Kefauver told the closing session of the 57th annual convention of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association that the United Nations can never be the "instrumentality" to keep the peace because of the veto power held by certain nations.

18 Women Get Special Degrees

ST. LOUIS, June 7—Eighteen women received unique degrees following commencement exercises at Washington university in St. Louis.

They were presented honorary PHT (Pushing Hubby Through) degrees by "the Corporation of Married Bachelors of Architecture" at the university.

The gold-embossed scrolls cited the wives "for completion of all required courses including budget stretching, culinary expedients and shoe-stringing economies."

Senate Crime Committee said:

"The United States now recognizes that the free people of the world must stand together to devise some means and plans by which democratic people can stand together and work together so that all the efforts of the Soviet Union can't upset the peace of the world."
